Frequently asked questions

- Q. I'd like to establish my charitable fund with 100 acres of land that's been in my family for generations. How can I do that?
- A. The Shasta Regional Community Real Estate Foundation has been established to process donations just like yours... from appraisal to environmental inspections to title work. By donating the land to SRCEF, you'll be able to deduct fair market value without paying tax on the capital gain. Just call us, and we'll get to work.
- Q. I have highly appreciated energy stock, and would love to use it to establish an endowed fund for the environment. Is that a good use of the asset?
- A. It makes excellent sense to donate appreciated securities. You can deduct full appreciated value, avoid the capital gains tax, and establish permanent support for an important cause.
- Q. My parents want to leave a permanent legacy for their hometown community, but they want to be sure they have adequate income for their lifetimes. Any ideas?
- A. A charitable remainder trust may provide the income they need now, while preserving a portion of their assets for charity. It's a creative way to give the tree and still enjoy the fruit.
- Q. I know I want to preserve part of my estate for my community, but I'm not ready to give up any assets right now. What do you recommend?
- A. Include a simple bequest in your will. Just let your attorney know your intentions. Your gift will support generations to come, for good, forever.
